

"Girls, on this page are examples of questions that you can ask. Find out what is special or interesting about what she does. You have to hand in this homework assignment in one week. Good luck!"

I looked at the paper. There were a number of questions that we could ask, such as: "Why did you decide to work in this profession?" and "What do you especially enjoy about your job?"

Oh, how I loved Mrs. Schwartz's projects! She always had such creative and original ideas! My mind started to race with possibilities. Should I interview the lady who owns the children's clothing store in our neighborhood? Or the seamstress who mends our clothes? Or...

"Rina, are you coming?" my friends called. "What are you dreaming about? It's time to go home!"

"I'm coming!"

When I got home, I told my mother all about the project and asked her advice – "Who do you think I should interview?"
