Can you please take me to the monastery at 24 Polania Street?
Yes, it will cost five kopeks.

Excuse me, taxi driver, but do you know anything about this monastery?
A little. I know that many Jewish parents put their children there to save them from the Nazis.
Do you think they will let me take the Jewish children?
No. Many people came to get them, but the priest says he has no Jewish children. The problem is that the children are young, and they don't remember that they are Jewish.
My children were only two and three years old when we left them. I'm sure they don't remember that they are Jewish.

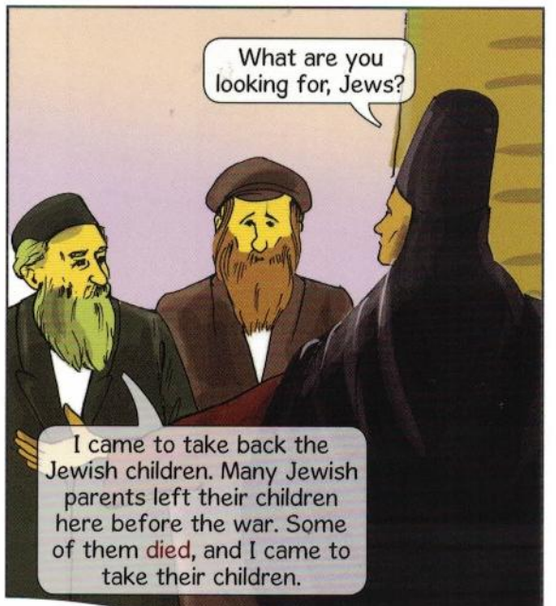
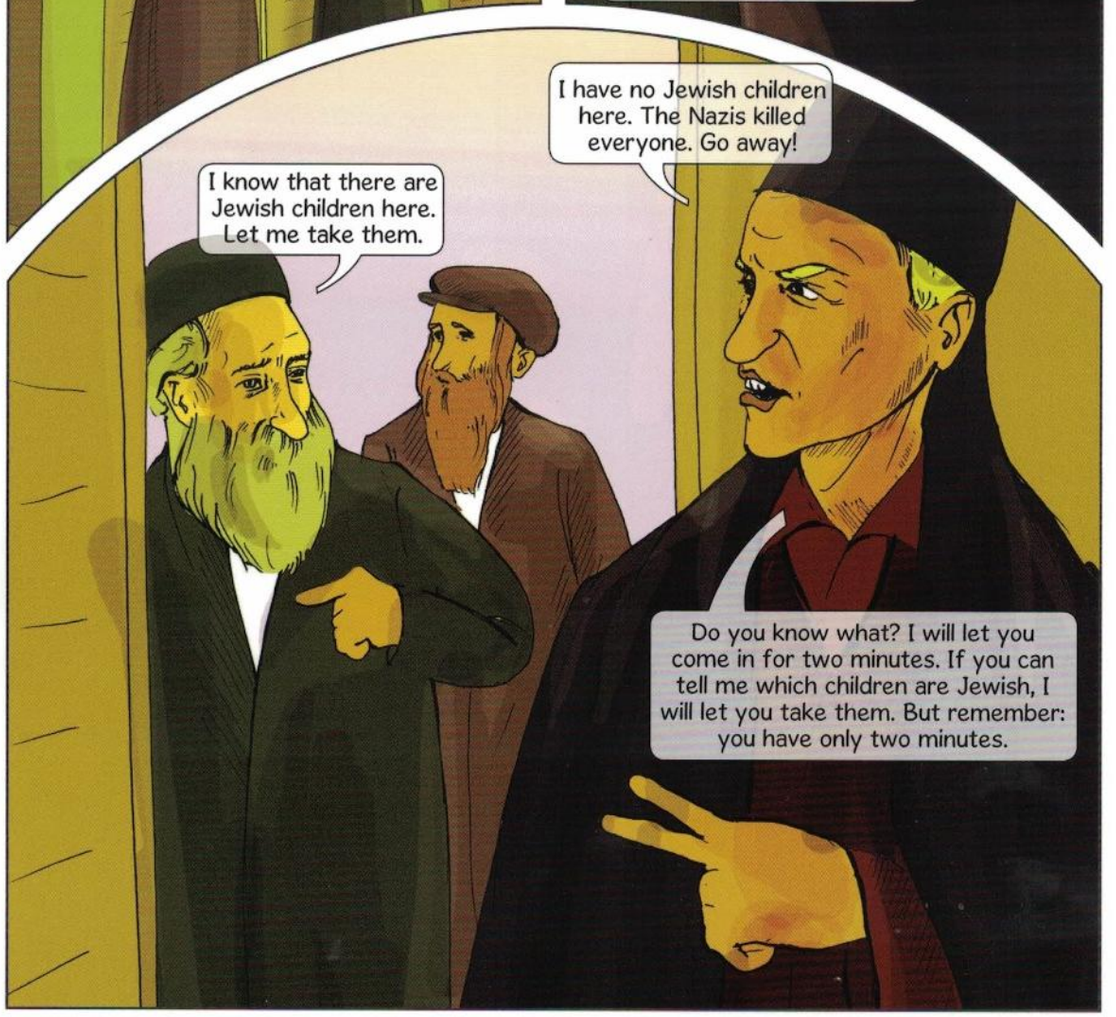
Do you think that my children forgot that they are Jewish?
I don't know...
They won't even know who I am!
Hashem will help.



What are you looking for, Jews?
I came to take back the Jewish children. Many Jewish parents left their children here before the war. Some of them died, and I came to take their children.



I know that there are Jewish children here. Let me take them.
I have no Jewish children here. The Nazis killed everyone. Go away!
Do you know what? I will let you come in for two minutes. If you can tell me which children are Jewish, I will let you take them. But remember: you have only two minutes.
