

Slowly and quietly, they took their small boat nearer to the big boat. They could see the men on the boat. They were putting oil into the sea from big barrels.

"Look at that! Can you see? They're putting oil into the sea!" said David quietly.

"We were right!" said John. "It was them. So what are we going to do?"

Faye said, "I'm going to swim up to the boat and listen to the men. I want to find out why they are doing this.

Who's coming with me?"

"I'll come with you," said Tyler.

Faye and Tyler went quietly into the water. They did not want the men to see or hear them. They swam to the boat. They could not see the men, but they could hear them. They listened carefully.

One man said, "Carlos, can you see any other boats?"

The man replied, "No, Jim. Nobody's watching. Let's finish this quickly."

"The men are talking," Faye said quietly to Tyler. "Let's go and listen to them." They took their small boat nearer to the big boat.